Municipal Auditorium, Cleveland, June 10.—The curtain rose today on the first scene in America's quadrennial political epic—the presidential campaign—when the Republican National Convention met here to nominate President Coolidge and his running mate, and adopt the platform on which they will seek election.

Though its chief nominee is known and its platform well outlined; though its program is as cut and dried as it is possible to make it, the convention lacked in its opening none of the colorful pageantry that always attaches to this peculiarly American political institution.

Long before 11 A. M., the official hour of meeting, the crowds began pouring into the great handsome auditorium, near the lake front — holiday crowds in holiday humor. Badge bedizened delegates, wives of delegates, cousins, sisters and aunts of delegates, row on row and file on file of them, poured into the galleries and the main floor of the "big top"—poured in just like a crowd at a circus, eddying around strident-voiced hawkers of peanuts and soft drinks, badges and souvenirs, hot dogs and slik flags, balloons and more badges, who swarmed on the streets separating the throng from its dimes and quarters.

Inside a band played, its music ignored, in the scramble for seats. Flags and bunting draped everything. Row on serried row the delegates' chairs sat, with state standards at the aisles. Straight and trim those rows looked this morning, but before the gavel fell, they were already askew and untidy as the delegates shuffled about among them.

The city rose to meet its obligation as host, and with elaborate plans for entertainment hoped to make the tens of thousands of visitors forget the ram-shackle union station, and the fact that they were there on business. There was just enough business ahead as the convention met to provide an excuse for being there, but not enough to worry anybody.

Adams Wields Gavel

Promptly at 11 A. M., while there were still great bare patches among the delegates' seats, and the late comers struggled for places in the visitors' galleries, John T. Adams of Iowa, the silver-haired chairman of the Republican National Committee, moved his wrist, and let his gavel fall. Then he began to beat with it, a patient, steady beat, demanding order from amid the chaos. Slowly, like unruly schoolboys, the delegates subsided to that condition of comparative silence, which is the nearest a national convention ever comes to being "in order." In the press section wires began a subdued clicking, and almost silent typewriters moved in a steady rhythm. William Jennings Bryan's bald head shone like a lighthouse within a hirsute sea, as he, staunch old Democrat, prepared to report the doings of his friends, the enemy.

Finally, quiet is achieved. Adams introduces a reverend gentleman, and America's tradition of invoking the Divine Presence and blessing are carried out. As the "Amen" dies to silence, the band crashes into the stirring strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," and with thousands of individual and personal noises that, conjoined, sound like a nation struggling to its feet, the assemblage stands up and sings.

From then on the convention becomes, on the part of its presiding officers, a continuous and futile struggle to achieve order and quiet sufficient to permit the transaction of business. The gavel sounds ceaselessly, wearily, as though recognizing the futility of projecting its weak reverberations of sound against that mighty cacophony out beyond the chairman's stand. Poor gavel! Before the convention finally dies into silence, it will have been pounded well nigh shapeless, and the heavy block upon which it beats will be dented and worn with punishment.

The Convention Picture

At last, however, Adams gets the ear of the convention long enough to notify it that it is to pose, like a good boy, for its picture; and it does, while within creamy muslin smoke bags scattered all around the hall there come sudden flashes and the photographers rush away to develop the panoramic pictures which presently will be on sale at the exits.

Another interlude of mild hubbub, and then Adams, in a brief speech, formally opens the convention, and directs George B. Lockwood, secretary of the national committee, to read the formal call, which is the warrant for this gathering of the hosts. The convention is moving on.

Then is presented the slate of proposed temporary officers, headed by the name of Theodore E. Burton, a Clevelander, and including every employee of the convention, even to assistant doorkeepers and messengers. Sometime somebody is going to ask just what an assistant doorkeeper is, and thus precipitate a new issue. But for today there is to be no ripple upon the placidity of convention harmony, and the slate is adopted amid a growing restlessness among the delegates. They are insatiate for sensation; they have come to yell and vent their emotions, and no puny chairman with a punier gavel can deny them.

But presently, as Burton advances to the front, a figure clothed in dignity as in a cloak, they break into din that makes their previous clamor seem like silence. Given a chance to yell, they yell. Burton is not one to be moved to self-consciousness by that; his long, rather grim, face masks completely whatever stage-fright or other tingling of the emotions he may feel. And presently they let him speak.

Burton Takes His Job

Burton's job is to welcome the delegates to Cleveland and Ohio, and then to sound for them the keynote of the campaign. His speech has already been given the approval of President Coolidge and other leaders; it will contain no surprises for the leaders, but will be punctuated with frequent opportunities for yelling, stamping, cheering, whistling and handclapping from the floor.

He mentions President Coolidge. The crowd goes wld. He names Warren Harding. There is a subdued quality to the applause, as when

Paris, June 10—The French cabinet of Marsal, formed for the purpose of carrying the president's message to the chamber and senate, was overthrown late today when the two houses voted to adjourn instead of hearing interpolations on Millerand's message. The chamber then voted against the new government by a majority of about 100, the vote being tantamount to a measure of censure against Millerand.

PROGRESSIVE PLANK IS TO BE PRESENTED

MAY BE REJECTED BY THE RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE

CARRIES DENUNCIATION OF THE COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION

(By United Press)

Cleveland, June 10—The progressive plank to be presented to the Republican convention for consideration by the platform committee was made public early today. It will be rejected by the resolutions committee, and serving as it does as a statement of principles from Senator La Follette and his followers, will be a milestone marking the definite break in the Republican ranks, which will be followed by announcement of the independent candidacy of La Follette here July 4.

The plank includes a denunciation of the Coolidge administration, so that its complete rejection is a foregone conclusion. It will serve only as a matter of record unless La Follette and the Wisconsin delegation are able to find a way of reading it from the floor, thus bringing it into the formal convention proceedings.

"The great issue before the American people today is the control of government and industry by private monopoly," the Wisconsin platform begins.

"The tyrannical power which the American people denied to a king they will not longer endure from a monopoly system. The people know the monopoly has its representatives in the halls of Congress, on the federal bench, and in the executive departments; that these servile agents barter away the nation's natural resources, nullify acts of Congress by judicial veto and administrative power, invade the people's rights by unlawful arrests and unconstitutional seizures and searches, direct our foreign policy in the interests of predatory wealth, and make wars and conscript the sons of the common people to fight them.

"The usurpation in recent years by the federal courts of the power to nullify laws duly enacted by the legislative branch of the government is a plain violation of the Constitution."

The plank then takes up:

Agriculture—It declares that the gravest emergency now exists, cites the conditions in 15 wheat states resulting in 26 per cent of the farmers of these statse being bankrupt since 1920 and declares:

"Almost unlimited prosperity for the great corporations and ruin and bankruptcy for agriculture is the direct and logical result of policies and legislation for deflating farmers while extending unlimited credit to the great corporations."

Oil Leases—Pledges complete housecleaning of the department of justice and department of the interior and executive departments, and pledges recovery of the naval oil reserves which were leased to Sinclair and Doheny by former Secretary Fall; advocates complete revision of water power act and all legislation applying to leases of public domains.

Railways—Pledges revision of the Esch-Cummins act so as to place railroad valuations upon actual investment, with a declaration favoring public ownership.

Taxation—A pledge for rigid economy, especially as regards the army and navy, with a declaration favoring a high sur-tax, a denunciation of the Mellon plan as a device to relieve millionaires at the expense of other taxpayers.

Tariff—A plank declaring in favor of drastic reduction in present high rate of the Fordney-McCumber bill.

Labor—Favoring abolition of the system of adjudicating labor disputes by means of injunction.

Waterways—A declaration for the Great Lakes-to-the-sea proposal.

Referendum—Favoring direct presidential elections and a movement for referendum.

Foreign Relations—Demands revision of the Treaty of Versailles in accordance with the terms of the armistice.

AN EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS NOT FAVORED BY COOLIDGE

(By United Press)

Washington, June 10.—President Coolidge does not contemplate calling an extra session of Congress, in spite of difficulties caused the administration by the failure of the deficiency bill and other important measures in Congress, it was made known on his behalf at the White House.

President Coolidge does not believe failure of the naval construction and modernization bills will affect his plan to call another limitation of armaments conference as was feared, the White House spokesman said.

PARTY LOYALTY PLEDGE MAY BE READ TO "BOB"

THIS MAY CAUSE BLAST TILTING ROOF OF THE CONVENTION

MAY FOLLOW PRECEDENT SET BY ROSCOE CONKLING IN 1880

(By United Press)

Cleveland, June 10.—A party loyalty pledge designed to read La Follette and his cohorts out of the G. O. P. may cause the blast that tilts the tight nailed roof of the Cleveland convention.

Following the precedent set by Roscoe Conklin in "mugwump" days at the Chicago convention in 1880, a group of red-hot Coolidge supporters have prepared a resolution pledging every delegate to support the Republican nominee—Calvin Coolidge.

In putting over such a resolution a real fight may be started that may denounce the president on the floor of the otherwise placid ratification meeting here.

They will not hesitate to use the explosive power behind them in setting off the movement, but those behind it insist that nothing can stop them.

Wind of the plan has reached the La Follette leaders, and they are preparing to meet it with a counter-proposal that contains an equally destructive forces as a substitute. They propose to offer resolutions reading Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, "out of the Republican party."

When Conkling offered the convention which named Garfield as Republican standard-bearer a resolution which received the support of all but three delegates, the three self-confessed "mugwumps" left the convention.

But it will be a different story at Cleveland if such a movement is tried out. Twenty-seven Wisconsin delegates pledged to La Follette and six North Dakota delegates will announce their intention of supporting the Wisconsin senator and stand their ground.

They will not only demand their right as duly elected Republican delegates to be heard but to vote on every question that comes before the convention.

They will not "walk out," and they will refuse to be thrown out, and any attempt to drive them out will be met with vociferous vocal resistance.

"We will fight to the last ditch for our rights in the convention," Robert M. La Follette, Jr., said today in discussing the movement. "The Wisconsin delegation will be in the convention when it ends whether the rest of the delegates like it or not. We may be deprived of our vote, but no one can rob us of a voice."

Tracy, Minn., June 10.—Clubs of the Second District of Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs, were off on the silver jubilee today. The annual district convention will be in session three days.

ASKS VOTERS TO DECIDE BY INFORMAL BALLOT

BOARD HOPES CITIZENS WILL GIVE EXPRESSION AT THE POLLS

BOARD THUS SEEKS TO GAIN THE SENTIMENT OF THE CITIZENS

During the past few months, the Board of Education has received a number of written communications, requesting that the proposition for a new high school building be submitted to the voters of Brainerd at the June Primary Election.

The Board of Education has had this matter under advisement for some time and has held a number of lengthy sessions devoted exclusively to a consideration of the best means of getting a full expression of the wishes of the people of Brainerd.

The legal aspects of the matter have been somewhat complex, more so than the average citizen would be aware.

In order that the Board of Education may be informed as to the wishes of the voters of Brainerd on this very important matter, and as a guide to their subsequent actions, it has seemed best to submit an informal ballot at the Primary Election, on two distinct propositions.

In order that this informal vote may be of real service to the Board in helping them to shape their actions it is very desirable that a full vote be secured on election day.

The Board hopes that every voter interested in the schools, will try to post himself on every phase of the school needs of this city in order to act wisely and intelligently at the polls.

At a special meeting of the school board Monday evening, a motion was passed to submit the following ballot at the June election:

INFORMAL SCHOOL BALLOT

For the information of the Board of Education of the Brainerd School District please indicate your views by placing an X opposite one of the following propositions:

	Vote for One
Erect a new High School Building on a site to be selected by the voters on a later ballot from at least two sites and also build an addition to the Lowell Building, the entire expenditure not to exceed $375,000.
Expend approximately $150,000 on additions to the present High School and Lowell Buildings instead of undertaking a new High School Building.

GRUDGE CHERISHED RESULTS IN KILLING OF COLORED WOMAN

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, June 10.—A grudge cherished by a man through a week in jail culminated today when he went from his cell to the woman who sent him there, killed her, and escaped.

John Robinson, colored, is the man sought as the killer. His victim was Mrs. Edward Mason, 38, wife of a colored railroad cook whose assault and battery charge sent Robinson to jail after a quarrel last week. The woman tried to escape, fleeing to a neighbor's home. He shot her three times as she ran across the lawn.

MONUMENT FOR WENDELIN GRIMM

Dean W. C. Coffey, Prof. Andrew Boss, and others from University Farm will take part in the program. C. J. Brand of the United States Department of Agriculture, L. J. Graber of the University of Wisconsin and J. H. Sheppard of the North Dakota Agricultural College are here.

N. P. Wants to Cut Down White Bear-Wyoming Run

St. Paul, June 10.—The Northern Pacific wants to take another train off the St. Paul, White Bear, Wyoming run.

F. W. Matson, railroad and warehouse commissioner, held a hearing on the application today, and took the case under advisement.

The train the road desires to discontinue leaves St. Paul at 5:15 p. m. The road wants to discontinue it Saturdays only, and would rearrange the 2:05 train schedule to partly replace it.

LOWDEN MAY NOT BE COOLIDGE RUNNING MATE

ILLINOIS MAN WRITES LETTER DECLINING ANY NOMINATION

ANTICIPATES CONVENTION MAY WISH TO DRAFT HIM

Cleveland, O., June 10.—Prospects of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois being President Coolidge's running mate were apparently blasted today as the convention crowds were beginning to gather for the first session to name the man who will run this year.

Anticipating that the convention might attempt to draft him, Lowden, it is understood, has written a letter to John W. Dwight, former representative from New York and eastern manager for the Illinois governor in 1920, postively declining the nomination in the event the convention names him. Lowden, it is understood, wrote the letter merely as a precautionary measure. If Lowden is not nominated, the letter will not be made public.

New Appointment By Preus on the Securities Commission

St. Paul, June 10.—Henry C. Brasie, for nine years investment clerk in the state auditor's office, today was appointed to the securities commission.

He fills the vacancy created several weeks ago by the resignation of F. E. Pearson, who took charge of the affairs of the closed Capital Trust and Savings bank, St. Paul. Governor Preus made the appointment.

2 LIEUTENANTS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN VIRGINIA

Ledham of North Carolina, were instantly killed today when their airplane crashed to the ground at Garrisonville, Ga., the navy department was informed today. The bodies of both men were consumed by the flames that destroyed the plane.

BURTON IN HIS KEYNOTE SPEECH TODAY

CITIZENS LOOK TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE FOR LEADERSHIP

PARTY STANDS OR FALLS ON CONSERVATIVE ADMINISTRATION

(By United Press)

Muncipal Auditorium, Cleveland, June 10.—The Republican National Convention, called to nominate Calvin Coolidge for the presidency and lay down policies with which the G. O. P. will seek retention of power this fall, opened here today.

At 11:30 o'clock Chairman John T. Adams of the national committee slammed down his gavel, calling to order the 1100 odd delegates and alternates and some 13,000 guests who came to witness the event.

The citizens band formed immediately before the rostrum under the leadership of the noted band master, John Phillip Sousa. The band played The Star Spangled Banner, followed by the Stars and Stripes Forever, America, and Sousa's latest march.

Bishop William F. Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal church, Cincinnati, was introduced by Adams to deliver the opening prayer.

Bishop Anderson prayed that in its deliberations the convention would adhere to "the deep sense of our destiny and obligations."

"Moral courage, definite and aggressive leadership," he declared, "must be part of this government.

"May these delegates be men of clean hands and of purer hearts," he said, "to carry on the obligations before them.

"Within the past year Thou didst bring us to pass safely through the strife of the world once again," Bishop Anderson prayed. "Thou didst cause us to stand with tear-dimmed eyes in the presence of our fallen chieftain, laid low by the hand of death.

"When in Thy unsearchable wisdom Thou didst summon our chief executive into the unseen world Thy hand was still over us for good."

Following the prayer, the band played America and the audience joined in the singing. Official photographs were taken, including motion pictures.

George B. Lockwood, secretary of the national committee, then read the official convention call and the first order of business followed in the election of Theodore Burton as temporary chairman of the convention. Cheers and applause greeted this election.

Chairman Adams announced Senator Peter B. Norbeck of South Dakota, A. P. Roberts of Michigan—both outspoken progressives—and Mrs. Annie A. Carlisle of South Bend as the committee to escort Burton to the platform.

Before turning over the gavel Chairman Adams spoke briefly.

"This is the eighteenth republican national convention," he said. "It is only 60 years since Lincoln was president. In that brief period our country has enjoyed the greatest moral and material advancement in all history.

"This has been brought about largely under republican rule, and at no time have the requirements of government been more wisely and effectively met than during the last three years.

"Our party has always stood for those principles which promote the welfare of the average man. It has adhered to America's best traditions both in domestic and foregn affairs.

"Today Europe is torn by class cleavage and hatred which threatens the whole social order. America alone, in the world's family of nations, is united and stable, prosperous and free, and at peace with all the world.

"We are here now to pledge anew our faith in American institutions and to name the next president and vice-president of the United States."

BOARD HOPES CITIZENS WILL GIVE EXPRESSION AT THE POLLS

BOARD THUS SEEKS TO GAIN THE SENTIMENT OF THE CITIZENS

During the past few months, the Board of Education has received a number of written communications, requesting that the proposition for a new high school building be submitted to the voters of Brainerd at the June Primary Election.

The Board of Education has had this matter under advisement for some time and has held a number of lengthy sessions devoted exclusively to a consideration of the best means of getting a full expression of the wishes of the people of Brainerd.

The legal aspects of the matter have been somewhat complex, more so than the average citizen would be aware.

In order that the Board of Education may be informed as to the wishes of the voters of Brainerd on this very important matter, and as a guide to their subsequent actions, it has seemed best to submit an informal ballot at the Primary Election, on two distinct propositions.

In order that this informal vote may be of real service to the Board in helping them to shape their actions it is very desirable that a full vote be secured on election day.

The Board hopes that every voter interested in the schools, will try to post himself on every phase of the school needs of this city in order to act wisely and intelligently at the polls.

At a special meeting of the school board Monday evening, a motion was passed to submit the following ballot at the June election:

INFORMAL SCHOOL BALLOT

For the information of the Board of Education of the Brainerd School District please indicate your views by placing an X opposite one of the following propositions:

	Vote for One
Erect a new High School Building on a site to be selected by the voters on a later ballot from at least two sites and also build an addition to the Lowell Building, the entire expenditure not to exceed $375,000.
Expend approximately $150,000 on additions to the present High School and Lowell Buildings instead of undertaking a new High School Building.

GRUDGE CHERISHED RESULTS IN KILLING OF COLORED WOMAN

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, June 10.—A grudge cherished by a man through a week in jail culminated today when he went from his cell to the woman who sent him there, killed her, and escaped.

John Robinson, colored, is the man sought as the killer. His victim was Mrs. Edward Mason, 38, wife of a colored railroad cook whose assault and battery charge sent Robinson to jail after a quarrel last week. The woman tried to escape, fleeing to a neighbor's home. He shot her three times as she ran across the lawn.

BURTON IN HIS KEYNOTE SPEECH TODAY

CITIZENS LOOK TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE FOR LEADERSHIP

PARTY STANDS OR FALLS ON CONSERVATIVE ADMINISTRATION

(By United Press)

Muncipal Auditorium, Cleveland, June 10.—The Republican National Convention, called to nominate Calvin Coolidge for the presidency and lay down policies with which the G. O. P. will seek retention of power this fall, opened here today.

At 11:30 o'clock Chairman John T. Adams of the national committee slammed down his gavel, calling to order the 1100 odd delegates and alternates and some 13,000 guests who came to witness the event.

The citizens band formed immediately before the rostrum under the leadership of the noted band master, John Phillip Sousa. The band played The Star Spangled Banner, followed by the Stars and Stripes Forever, America, and Sousa's latest march.

Bishop William F. Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal church, Cincinnati, was introduced by Adams to deliver the opening prayer.

Bishop Anderson prayed that in its deliberations the convention would adhere to "the deep sense of our destiny and obligations."

"Moral courage, definite and aggressive leadership," he declared, "must be part of this government.

"May these delegates be men of clean hands and of purer hearts," he said, "to carry on the obligations before them.

"Within the past year Thou didst bring us to pass safely through the strife of the world once again," Bishop Anderson prayed. "Thou didst cause us to stand with tear-dimmed eyes in the presence of our fallen chieftain, laid low by the hand of death.

"When in Thy unsearchable wisdom Thou didst summon our chief executive into the unseen world Thy hand was still over us for good."

Following the prayer, the band played America and the audience joined in the singing. Official photographs were taken, including motion pictures.

George B. Lockwood, secretary of the national committee, then read the official convention call and the first order of business followed in the election of Theodore Burton as temporary chairman of the convention. Cheers and applause greeted this election.

Chairman Adams announced Senator Peter B. Norbeck of South Dakota, A. P. Roberts of Michigan—both outspoken progressives—and Mrs. Annie A. Carlisle of South Bend as the committee to escort Burton to the platform.

Before turning over the gavel Chairman Adams spoke briefly.

"This is the eighteenth republican national convention," he said. "It is only 60 years since Lincoln was president. In that brief period our country has enjoyed the greatest moral and material advancement in all history.

"This has been brought about largely under republican rule, and at no time have the requirements of government been more wisely and effectively met than during the last three years.

"Our party has always stood for those principles which promote the welfare of the average man. It has adhered to America's best traditions both in domestic and foregn affairs.

"Today Europe is torn by class cleavage and hatred which threatens the whole social order. America alone, in the world's family of nations, is united and stable, prosperous and free, and at peace with all the world.

"We are here now to pledge anew our faith in American institutions and to name the next president and vice-president of the United States."

LOWDEN MAY NOT BE COOLIDGE RUNNING MATE

ILLINOIS MAN WRITES LETTER DECLINING ANY NOMINATION

ANTICIPATES CONVENTION MAY WISH TO DRAFT HIM

Cleveland, O., June 10.—Prospects of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois being President Coolidge's running mate were apparently blasted today as the convention crowds were beginning to gather for the first session to name the man who will run this year.

Anticipating that the convention might attempt to draft him, Lowden, it is understood, has written a letter to John W. Dwight, former representative from New York and eastern manager for the Illinois governor in 1920, postively declining the nomination in the event the convention names him. Lowden, it is understood, wrote the letter merely as a precautionary measure. If Lowden is not nominated, the letter will not be made public.

WOMEN'S CLUBS FAVOR STUDY OF SEX HYGIENE

(By United Press)

Los Angeles, Calif., June 10.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs, in session here, today took up the question of sex education. The standing committee presented the following resolution:

Resolution No. 1:

"Whereas, all the students of the problems involved in Social Hygiene are practically unanimous in the opinion that sex education is the surest and most constructive means not only of preventing venereal disease, but also of bringing about a higher and nobler relationship between men and women, greater happiness in married life, and the building up of a finer race of men, and

"Whereas, the General Federation was one of the pioneer organizations that recognized the value and need of the social hygiene movement, and

"Whereas, the work of this committee has always been considered by the Federal and State authorities as one of the greatest contributions to nation-wide health work,

"Be it resolved: That the General Federation of Women's Clubs put itself on record as strongly favoring sex education, and,

"Be it further resolved: That special study groups be formed in the respective states for the study of this subject."

Resolution No. 2:

"Whereas, all modern criminologists, psychologists, and the public health leaders feel that sex delinquency is one of our most important health and moral problems, and

"Whereas, the old idea of punishing the sex delinquents is now giving place to the newer and saner attitude of, first, the punishing of all those who are contributing to and are supporting the vice system, and, second, the provision of proper social treatment for the sex offender,

"Be it resolved: That the General Federation of Women's Clubs put itself on record as strongly urging the interest of all women in the study of these problems, and the newer methods of dealing with them."

(Signed) "Dr. Rachelle Yarross, Chairman Social Hygiene, Chicago, Ill."

Convention Sidelights

(By United Press)

Cleveland, June 10.—Many distinguished folk are here for the convention. Most of the members of the cabinet who could get away, and the big Republican figures in congress are on the ground.

Mrs. Florence Harding, widow of the late president; Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, and the wives of senators are among box-holders. Some of the latest things in summer finery will be shown at social events planned by Cleveland hostesses for the convention period.

The main problem of the convention leaders is to keep it here long enough to let Cleveland hotel keepers and business men come out even by getting back the money they put up to insure the convention for the city. Unless some totally unexpected problem arises, leaders do not see how they can keep the convention beyond Thursday night, but they will try to hold it over Friday.

C. Bascom Slemp, President Coolidge's secretary, and William M. Butler, his campaign manager, and the incoming chairman of the national committee, are the handshakers- inchiefs at the Coolidge headquarters. The president will be kept fully informed of what goes on.

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETS WEDNESDAY

Town of Remer to Have Delegation Present at the Session

ATHLETIC PARK REPORT

Special Committee on Pure Bred Dairy Sires to Make Final Report

The regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held on Wednesday evening. This inaugurates the usual summer policy of holding only one meeting per month during June, July and August and it is hoped that all members will make a special effort to attend the one meeting each month.

President F. H. Gruenhagen is in receipt of a communication from Remer, stating that this village will have a delegation of its citizens present at Wednesday evening's meeting, but not signifying the business that the delegation will bring up.

The special committee on pure-bred dairy sires, will have its complete report to submit at this meeting, including some interesting figures on the work it has accomplished.

J. P. Anderson, chairman of the special committee on an athletic park for the city, also has an important report to make on what his committee has accomplished.

It is expected that there will be much other business of importance and interest to be transacted at Wednesday's meeting.

General Pershing Greets Private Ruth After "Babe" Finds Uniform That's Big Enough To Fit

When "Babe" enlisted in the 104th. Field Artillery of the New York Guard, he was unable to get a uniform large enough for him. When the Yankees went to Washington to play a series with the Senators, Ruth went to the War Department and there they finally found a jacket broad enough across the shoulders and trousers large enough in every way for the bulky Home Run King. This photograph was made immediately afterwards when the "Babe" was received by General John J. Pershing.

When Chairman Burton took the platform he received a warm welcome. His speech, delivered in a clear, strong voice, extraordinary for a man of his years, was listened to attentively, but there were no great demonstrations, and only light applause during the first half hour of his speaking.

For the most part he adhered to the text that had been prepared in advance. During his discussion, however, of farm relief, proposal that has been laid before congress, he digressed from the manuscript as if to emphasize the importance of this problem.

"For the last month I have been studying the various proposals which have been made, and I must confess my disappointment at every one of the plans which have been suggested. I hope there will be an acceptable one in the near future."

The first outburst of cheering during his speech was when Burton, with reference presumably to prohibition declared emphatically: "The republican party stands now, as always, for law enforcement."

Applause broke out in a wave of handclapping which ended in cheers.

No hundred-year franchises should be granted brought another burst of applause. Burton referred to conservation of our natural resources.

Burton again broke away from his manuscript to condemn "political sensationalism."

"What a mass of material hypocrisy and selfish arguments are being laid before the people under a guise of patriotism," he said.

In the latter portion of his address, during which Burton devoted himself to discussion of legislation enacted and contemplated along controversial lines the audience frequently broke into applause.

Handclapping and cheers greeted his statement: "It is necessary for us to meet this situation with a clarion call to all, to think more of duties and less of rights and privileges, more of duties to the state and humanity."

Again in the discussion of the recent scandal probes he received salvos of cheering for his attack on "scandal mongering."

The longest and most profound demonstration of the convention — cheering, applause and battle cries— together with the Wisconsin delegation jumping to its feet, followed by the whole convention, when Burton said: "Let us not forget the importance of a republican majority in the next congress, made up of members tried and true, who will stand united."

Cries of "LaFollette—throw him out," broke out in some quarters through the din of applause in other sections.

Hardly had this demonstration died down when another broke out as Burton declared most of the people look "to Coolidge rather than to congress for leadership."

"Others may have lost their heads, but Calvin Coolidge has not lost his," Burton shouted, and the convention roared its approval. He concluded his speech at 1:05 p. m.

Burton Speech Applauded

Cleveland, O., June 10—Prolonged applause followed the conclusion of Burton's speech. He talked for more than an hour and a half.

The convention then proceeded with business of the day. Chairman Adams of the national committee submitted the committee's recommendations for the temporary offices of the conventions, the list being adopted. LaFayette B. Gleason was elected secretary and C. M. Harger assistant secretary.

Col. A. B. Thayer, Indiana, was elected sergeant-at-arms, and former Representative Campbell and Senator Fess, Ohio, parliamentarians.

Proceedng to adoption of rules for the convention, Burton called on one after the other of the delegates to submit resolutions agreed upon for completion of the convention's work. Reaching the resolution upon personnel, of the resolution committee, he called on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Mention of his name was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration lasting several minutes. Mellon came to the platform and handed his resolution to the clerk while the convention roared its approval.

Addison G. Proctor, St. Joseph, Mich., 86 years old, who was present at the republican convention that nominated Lincoln, was introduced by the chair.

"Slavery was the problem," he said, "to meet then. The country was aroused. In nominating Lincoln we builded better than we knew.

"We found success in honesty of statesmanship then, and you will find success in honesty of statesmanship today."

Then the Youngstown, O., glee club sang a couple of numbers. By this time adjournment had been so long delayed that scores of delegates and hundreds of people on the floor and in the gallery began to leave the hall.

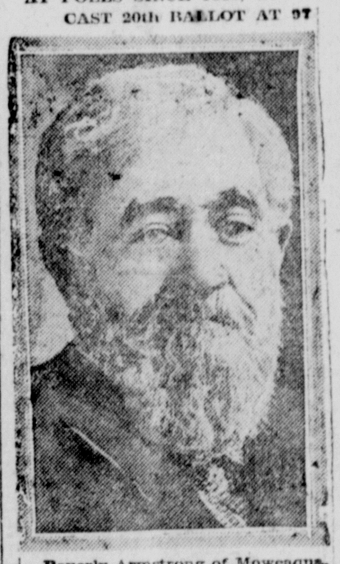

The scene outside the convention hall was even more impressive than inside. Several hundred people were gathered in the public square about the public hall, where they could hear all the proceedings of the convention through voice amplifiers.

As Bishop Anderson delivered the opening prayer these men and women stood with bowed heads. Then they joined in singing America.

As temporary chairman Burton proceeded with his speech. However the, crowd slowly drifted away.

The convention adjourned at 1:40 P. M. until 10:30 tomorrow.

OLDEST REGULAR VOTER, AT POLLS SINCE 1848, TO CAST 20th BALLOT AT 97

Beverly Armstrong of Mowequa, Ill., is undoubtedly the oldest voter in the country. After casting his first vote in 1848, he has never failed to go to the polls at the nineteen intervening presidential elections and he claims a record for regularly exercising the right of sufforage. He will celebrate his ninety-seventh birthday on October 23, is still active, and will vote in November.

DAUGHTER OF NOTORIOUS MONK RASPUTIN FLEES FROM SIBERIA TO PARIS

Maria Gregorievna, who claims she is one of the five children of Rasputin, famous evil genius of the late Czarina of Russia, escaped from Siberia and arrived recently in the French capital. She says she lived with her father in Petrograd and that every week he took her to see the Czarina. She tells of terrible experiences after Rasputin's death when she and her brothers and sisters were imprisoned before being sent to Siberia. She is a talented girl and a good dancer and hopes to obtain an engagement on the stage in Paris.

Palm Sunday

The real reason for planting yew trees in churchyards is indicated in an excerpt from Liber Festivalis, printed by Caxton in 1483, which reads as follows: "But for reason that we have no olive that bears green leaf, we take yew instead of palm and olive and carry it in procession; and so is this day called Palm Sunday."

CHINESE JUNK AND POLYGLOT CREW, WITH NATIVE WIFE OF WHITE CAPTAIN AT HELM, HERE ON WORLD CRUISE

The Amoy, a 14 ton junk, 68 feet long, left Shanghai May 17, 1922 on its way around the world. The junk was built by George Waard, a tall, lanky Dutchman of Canadian birth, who had made every port of the seven seas when he went to China shortly after the Boxer Rebellion, fell under the spell of the Orient, became a Chinese revenue officer and began battling river pirates. His wife is a Chinese woman and with them is their eight year old son Bob. Alfred Nilson, a soldier of fortune picked up at San Francisco, and a dusky youth from Panama complete the crew. The strange looking craft is built of camphorwood and Chinese fir and the timbers are held together by bamboo pins.

Beef for 5,000 People Roasted by Electricity

A new and unusual application of electric heating was made recently when electrically barbecued beef was served to five thousand people at the annual round up and celebration at Ephrata, Washington. We learn from Electrical World that four steers weighing about two thousand pounds each were dressed and prepared for the barbecue and roasted in a large electrically-heated pit built especially for the occasion. The improvised oven was 32 feet long, 4 feet wide and 6 feet deep. Twelve heating elements each of 3 kilowatt capacity and consisting of about 150 feet of No. 14 iron wire were placed one foot above the bottom of the pit. Sheet-iron heat deflectors were placed one foot above the heating elements, and a foot and a half above the deflectors were placed iron bars to hold the beef. Thermostatic control was provided to maintain an even heat in the pit.

The meat was first roasted at a temperature of 550 degrees for two hours. The heat was then reduced to 350 degrees and maintained at this point for four hours. For the next six hours the temperature ranged from 250 degrees to 300 degrees. At midnight the meat had been roasting for twelve hours, and the temperature was then reduced to 200 degrees and held there for twelve hours until the time of the barbecue.

Albumen From the Lupin Seed Makes Good Food

Not only in the Mediterranean region, but also along the western coast of America there grow freely tall, handsome spikes of blue-white or yellow flowers that form entrancing bits of color in the landscape during the season for blossoming, and are not infrequently used as a garden flower. It is the lupin, which belongs to the family of leguminous vegetables to which mankind owes so much, and which includes beans and peas as well as peanuts.

As in other members of the family the fruit of the lupin consists of seed-bearing pods, but no attempt has been made to use them either for forage or for human food until recently. It is now announced that by a German process, the Pohl method of extraction, said to be quite inexpensive, the seeds can be made to yield an uncommonly high percentage of albumen, which, added to rye or other flour, makes an extremely nutritious food.

This new bread is likewise admirably fitted to form part of a diet of certain (presumably diabetic) patients because of the small amount of starch it contains.—Literary Digest.

What She Was After

Mrs. Skiffington, during the course of an afternoon call on Mrs. Biffington, sought the latter's advice as to applying for divorce.

"Well," said Mrs. Biffington, upon the conclusion of her friend's lengthy recital of her woes, "you have had your marital troubles just like the rest of us; but really, dear, to judge from what you have told me, I am not at all sure that you would be justified in taking this step. You have no other grounds for seeking a divorce, have you?"

Mrs. Skiffington hesitated a moment, and then added: "To tell the truth, in addition to what I have just said, I have a brother who is a lawyer and I am very anxious to give him something to do."—Farm Life.

ONE MEETING A MONTH

DURING the summer months, the Chamber of Commerce holds but one meeting a month, and the Dispatch urges all members to attend and make that meeting a successful one. The Chamber occupies an important place in our community life, it has "put across" things of vital interest to all and is continuing a most constructive program.

Whereas, in former years, the custom was to try to cover many things and at the end of a year be unable to point to many real achievements, the plan now is to do something worth while and concrete each year, to center on some definite goal which can be reached and made successful.

Instead of using all the Chamber's steam for a lot of occasions and sounding a whistle until the craft had no power to buck the current, the Chamber conserves its power, maps out its voyage, makes the dock and when the cargo is safely landed, it may be pardoned if it does emit a blast of congratulation.

Last year the Chamber championed the improvements at the Tourist Park which were of such convenience and so universally approved of by the tourists that close to 14,000 visited the park, registered, were royally entertained and sounded Brainerd's praises wherever they went.

This year the Chamber centered its efforts on dairy herd improvements and "Better Sires Day" is still receiving mention throughout the United States and reflecting glory on the Chamber.

BRAINERD MAN IN PAGEANT

DAN CARMICHAEL, now a prominent attorney in Minneapolis, in former years resided in Brainerd and was a clerk in the Northern Pacific raliway shops. He studied law, graduated with honors and is now an honored member of the legal fraternity.

He took a prominent part, that of Abraham Lincoln, in the Disabled American Veterans' Lincoln pageant presented at Kenwood Parade in Minneapolis. The Minneapolis Journal of Monday presented the picture of a veteran shaking "Lincoln's" hand and this story with the illustration:

"E. G. Bloomfield, Civil war soldier, voted twice for Abe Lincorn for president in '60 and '64. He cast the second vote as he lay wounded in the war hospital, and wished he might shake the hand of the great war president. Last night, at the Disabled American Veterans' Lincoln pageant, he got his wish—twice. He shook hands with Robert Carey, Jefferson Junior high school student, who is playing 'Lincoln as a boy,' and with Daniel Carmichael, Minneapolis attorney, who is President Lincoln in the pageant.

CROPS ARE RETARDED

IN a recent journey from Brainerd to Albert Lea and back, a Dispatch representative paid special attention to crops, and the general situation is one which cries loudly for warmer weather. Corn is but a few inches in height and all other plantings seem to have been similarly retarded.

Rains are adding to the pasturage and thus giving dairy farmers much benefit and again emphasizing the importance of this industry. Of course, no one is to blame about weather conditions and every one is hopeful that improved temperature condition will quickly push crops to fruition.

Recent rains, when warm, have added to crop growth. No one is seriously complaining and every one hopes for the best.

WOMAN HEADS G. O. P. CONVENTION GROUP

EVERY day women receive great honors and take up new responsibilities. For the first time in the history of either of the major political parties, a woman is to head an important committee of a Republican national convention. Women, placed in positions of trust and confidence, have revealed admirable qualities. They have proved secretive, they have evinced enthusiasm and they have shown the true spirit of devotion to any cause they espouse.

On the recommendation of Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Kentucky, who succeeds Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Ohio, as vice chairman of the national executive committee, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Martin, of Philadelphia, delegate at large from Pennsylvania, is to be made chairman of the republican convention's committee on permanent organization.

ON THE EVE OF THE CONVENTION

SAMUEL G. BLYTHE, well known writer, gives a slant on the coming republican convention which is an interesting one. "It opens," he says, "with the gathering of a thousand men calmly determined for Coolidge and with a new hand on every important lever of the machine. It opens with the old line politicians hurt and dazed over their ruthless relegation to the rear, and new line politicians not at all disturbed by the plaint and protest of the former managers.

"It opens as no other republican convention week has opened since the original republicans met under the oaks at Jackson, with its work laid out for it down to almost the smallest detail."

La Follette, however, seems intent to block any attempt to nominate Coolidge by acclamation.

POLITICS ABSORBING

IT is unfortunate, in a way, that this nation has a period of stress in which things political come to be so all absorbing as to tinge and color almost any present condition of things. Poor crops, for instance, or indications of poor crops, may discourage the farmers and this is seized upon and made political capital.

It is hoped there will be a clean campaign, based on constructive issues, whose carrying out will place the nation in a continuing era of prosperity. The days of reconstruction have been vital ones and its effect has been experienced by many an industry. While this nation has been getting its house in order, many European nations have not even fairly started this work.

The most important of these is the Resolutions Committee, which will report back the draft of the party platform. Committee rooms are assigned, and meeting hours announced. The delegates are getting more restless every minute. Some are leaving, beset by hunger—or thirst. (Out in Lake Erie a fleet of fast motorboats patrols to see that no contraband liquor is landed from Canada, just across the way.)

Announcements that are only half heard are shouted into the growing confusion. In a little while there is nothing more to do. A group of motorists from Washington got lost in Druid Hill park in Baltimore. They were trying to make the Pimlico racetrack, which is situated just on the edge of the Maryland metropolis. So they hailed a policeman.

"Can you tell us how to get to the racetrack?"

The officer was deliberate in his reply.

"Do you see that gent on the corner," he asked, "the one with the seedy suit, the form sheet sticking out of his pocket, and his shoes run down at the heel?"

"Yes, we see him."

ONE MEETING A MONTH

DURING the summer months, the Chamber of Commerce holds but one meeting a month, and the Dispatch urges all members to attend and make that meeting a successful one. The Chamber occupies an important place in our community life, it has "put across" things of vital interest to all and is continuing a most constructive program.

Whereas, in former years, the custom was to try to cover many things and at the end of a year be unable to point to many real achievements, the plan now is to do something worth while and concrete each year, to center on some definite goal which can be reached and made successful.

Instead of using all the Chamber's steam for a lot of occasions and sounding a whistle until the craft had no power to buck the current, the Chamber conserves its power, maps out its voyage, makes the dock and when the cargo is safely landed, it may be pardoned if it does emit a blast of congratulation.

Last year the Chamber championed the improvements at the Tourist Park which were of such convenience and so universally approved of by the tourists that close to 14,000 visited the park, registered, were royally entertained and sounded Brainerd's praises wherever they went.

This year the Chamber centered its efforts on dairy herd improvements and "Better Sires Day" is still receiving mention throughout the United States and reflecting glory on the Chamber.

BRAINERD MAN IN PAGEANT

DAN CARMICHAEL, now a prominent attorney in Minneapolis, in former years resided in Brainerd and was a clerk in the Northern Pacific railway shops. He studied law, graduated with honors and is now an honored member of the legal fraternity.

He took a prominent part, that of Abraham Lincoln, in the Disabled American Veterans' Lincoln pageant presented at Kenwood Parade in Minneapolis. The Minneapolis Journal of Monday presented the picture of a veteran shaking "Lincoln's" hand and this story with the illustration:

"E. G. Bloomfield, Civil war soldier, voted twice for Abe Lincorn for president in '60 and '64. He cast the second vote as he lay wounded in the war hospital, and wished he might shake the hand of the great war president. Last night, at the Disabled American Veterans' Lincoln pageant, he got his wish—twice. He shook hands with Robert Carey, Jefferson Junior high school student, who is playing 'Lincoln as a boy,' and with Daniel Carmichael, Minneapolis attorney, who is President Lincoln in the pageant.

CROPS ARE RETARDED

IN a recent journey from Brainerd to Albert Lea and back, a Dispatch representative paid special attention to crops, and the general situation is one which cries loudly for warmer weather. Corn is but a few inches in height and all other plantings seem to have been similarly retarded.

Rains are adding to the pasturage and thus giving dairy farmers much benefit and again emphasizing the importance of this industry. Of course, no one is to blame about weather conditions and every one is hopeful that improved temperature condition will quickly push crops to fruition.

Oats ran four inches and over in height. Alfalfa really was thriving, again calling evidence to the hardy trait of this forage plant. In times of stress as well as prosperity it can furnish the foundation for the farmer's dairy herd subsistence.

Recent rains, when warm, have added to crop growth. No one is seriously complaining and every one hopes for the best.

BOOSTING BETTER DAIRYING PROJECT

"The Farmer of St. Paul," Agricultural Magazine, Gives Brainerd Valuable Publicity

Through the courtesy of "THE FARMER OF ST. PAUL," one of the most prominent weekly farm publications in the United States, "Better Sires Day in Brainerd" secured valuable publicity. "THE FARMER OF ST. PAUL" made of the Brainerd plan of dairy herd improvement a leading front page article. Editor Wallace, of this publication, is a brother of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The page wide heading stated "Boosting Better Dairying. Brainerd Business Men put 25 Purebred Sires in Crow Wing County, Minn.," and was written by Berry H. Akers, Associated Editor.

A new day has dawned for the dairy industry of Crow Wing County, Minn., as the result of the generosity and the interest in agriculture of the bankers and business men of Brainerd. Twenty-five purebred dairy sires have been imported and given new homes in that county where they will be at the disposal of 148 farmers owning more than 800 dairy cows.

These sires were placed with the farmers in the spirit of helpfulness, and without cost to the farmers. They were purchased by the bankers and business men who donated $3,000 for the purpose of buying them, and were distributed to the farmers at Brainerd on May 10. No one who was present on that occasion will doubt the interest and enthusiasm of the men who put up the money, or the appreciation of the farmers who are to benefit.

This plan of helping the farmer help himself is as novel as it is new in the Northwest. No other community has undertaken to promote better dairying in just this manner and the experiment is attracting more than ordinary attention. It grew out of the keen desire of the business men of Brainerd to actually do something worth while to improve the agriculture of their county, and the cooperation of the farmers indicates their eagernes to take advantage of an exceptional opportunity.

Sires to Build up Herds

The distribution of these sires was the occasion for a celebration at Brainerd in which farmers and business men participated. The sires were distributed to the "caretakers" who had been selected by the farmers in each "block" after which there was a parade and a program of speaking. C. P. Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, was the chief speaker and he highly commended this plan as a step toward better dairying.

"Few of us today realize what this day means to Crow Wing County," spoke Bert Sabin, of Mission, farmer community leader and president of the Crow Wing County Purebred Sire Association which was organized to receive the sires from the business men and direct their handling by the farmers. "It marks the beginning of a new era in dairying in our county.

"All of these sires will go into communities where the herds are small, and where few of the farmers have purebred sires. It will be the first opportunity of these farmers to build up their herds.

"Next year we will have over 800 calves by these sires in this country. These will be better calves. Then the next year there will be more better calves, and each year thereafter there will be more better calves. Who then, can foresse the significance of this movement?"

Then followed F. H. Gruenhagen, president of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, who spoke of the interest of the business men in the agriculture of Crow Wing County. It was his suggestion that led up to the purchase and distribution of the sires. The bankers and business men were keen to do something for agriculture, and when he explained the need of more purebred sires they jumped at the opportunity. Mr. Gruenhagen is a farmer, as well as merchant, and appreciates the need of better herds, especially in a new, developing country like Crow Wing County.

Three thousand dollars was raised by subscription among the bankers and business men. This done, the Crow Wing County Purebred Sires Association was organized to receive the sires. The members of this association are the farmers who have signed the agreement to use the sires according to the association's regulations. This association retains ownership of the sires.

The sires were purchased by E. G. Roth, county agent, in Northern Wisconsin. There were 17 Guernseys and 8 Holsteins, ranging in age from seven months to yearlings. Every calf is out of a dam with a record of at least 400 pounds of butterfat per year. All are purebred and registered. Distribution was by lot, and the caretakers selected their sires in the order of the numbers which they drew.

Drawing Their Calves

J. W. Stowe, of Cross Lake, won the honor of having first selection of the Guernseys. He was as happy as a school boy as he chose the oldest sire in the bunch. He is the caretaker in the Cross Lake "block." Ward Cragun, of the Long Lake "block" had the first selection in Holsteins, and picked a very typy calf. The drawing was held to arouse interest as it was immaterial which sire the winners drew, as all are of excellent breeding.

Every section of the county received a sire. This means that in some townships the association sire is the only purebred in that township as there are many townships in Crow Wing County where farms and herds are small and there are no privately owned purebred sires. In Baxter Township every farmer signed up with a total of 87 cows. In Ideal Township 84 cows were signed up, and these two townships were each allotted two sires.

The membership was divided into "blocks." There are 25 blocks, a sire for each block. The farmers in each block select the caretaker and make their own arrangements to pay him for keeping the sire. The association figures it costs about $60 a year to keep and feed a bull, and this sum will be paid the caretaker by a small service fee, the amount depending on the number of cows in each block. This fee will range from 25 cents to $1. In no case may it exceed $2. There is no other charge against the farmers.

Sires will be shifted from one block to another every two years. In organizing, the association made provision that it might purchase sires in the future if desired, or receive additional sires as gifts if they are offered. Since it retains ownership of the sires there is no liability to the farmers if a sire dies or becomes disabled.

The farmer in return for this service agrees to have his herd tested for tuberculosis, and to keep it free of tuberculosis, to use no other sire, and to immediately dispose of any scrub or grade bulls which he may now own.

The bull association is directed by a board of directors selected by districts. Mr. Sabin, of Mission, is president; Mr. Roth, county agent, is secretary, and S. R. Adair, of Brainerd, county treasurer, is treasuerer. Other members of the board are all farmers: Sigurd Brenno, of Pequot; C. M. Taylor, of Emily; Con Faupel, of Merrifield; Walter Waffensmith, of Deerwood; and Richard Wetherbee, of Crow Wing.

The management of the association is very similar to that of the established bull associations to be found in many other counties, notably Beltrami County, Minn. The main difference is that the farmers bought the sires themselves in other districts; in Crow Wing County the business men donated them.

An outstanding feature of this plan is that it helps the small farmer by placing a purebred sire at his disposal. The bull association admirably solves the problem of that farmer who can't afford a purebred sire and hasn't need all alone for one if he could afford it.

AMUSEMENTS

Lon Chaney's Hunchback Role is the Last Word in Stage Art

Lon Chaney, admittedly the finest interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen and whose work as the fake cripple in "The Miracle Man" stands out as a bit of remarkable acting, to say nothing of his other wonderful impersonations, has added another striking characterization to his already long list in his appearance as "Quasimodo," the stellar role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive picture production, based on Hugo's classic, which will be shown at the New Park last time tonight at popular prices.

"The Call of the Canyon" Big Picture

Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw are featured players in the cast of the Zane Grey Paramount

production of "The Call of the Canyon," which has its last showing at the Lyceum tonight, the second of this popular author's picture stories to be shown here recently.

"Montmartre" Starring Pola Negri At Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday

"Montmartre," Pola Negri's latest Paramount production, directed by Ernest Lubitsch, the man who made the star famous in "Passion," is a colorful romance of France about 1860.

In the picture, which comes to the Lyceum Theatre Wednesday for a run of two days, Pola has the role of Yvette, an alluring dancer in the Cafe Flora in Montmartre. She has a chance meeting with a young composer, and he falls in love with her. But there is an older cousin who steps in and spoils everything by telling the musician's mother that Yvette is no kind of a woman for her son to be seen with—a cafe grisette and all that. Nevertheless they get married in secret.

ODD RACE LIVES IN UNDERGROUND CAVES

Troglodytes of North Africa Antedate the Arabs.

London.—A strange people, living in holes in the ground, descendants of a race so far antedating the Arabs in North Africa that its origin is lost in antiquity were found by Horace D. Ashton, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society and a member of the Explorers' club, during his travels a year ago into the unfrequented localities of Africa a few hundred miles south of the Mediterranean coast. Mr. Ashton calls these people the Troglodytes, a word meaning cave dwellers, of Southern Tunisia. Their headquarters is in a section 300 miles south of the site of ancient Carthage, in the hills known as the Matmata plateau.

"There are practically 30,000 of these cave dwellers," says Mr. Ashton in describing some of their peculiarities in the travel bulletin issued by the French government tourist office at 342 Madison avenue. "No doubt, 2,000 years ago they were living a pastoral life in tents at the foothills, but the armies of the Caesars, after conquering Carthage, swept south and menaced them so that they took refuge in the rocky hilltops, where they dug themselves in between layers of rock.

"Today most of them live just as the invaders left them, as these refuge caves solved a great problem in house construction in a place where there is practically no wood. Utilizing one stratum of hard rock as a floor and the one above as a ceiling, they dig chambers into the comparatively soft marl between, whose dimensions are about 20 feet long, 8 feet wide and with ceilings forming a perfect arch 8 feet high, the whole finished with a crude cement and then whitewashed."

No Furniture in Homes.

Many of the houses, according to Mr. Ashton, contain several chambers, some opening from the main room, but often with independent entrances, except in the case of the harems, or women's quarters. Furniture is virtually absent. The bed is really a platform or shelf in the far end of the room, about three feet above the level of the floor. In only one house did Mr. Ashton see a table, and that was in the home of Sheik Mohammed Lafet of Duirat. He had a plain table, upon which were his papers and some photographs sent by former visitors.

Along the side walls of the occupied rooms are divans, upon which the occupants sit, as there are no chairs. In the women's quarters will be found looms and earthen bowls in which the native dishes are prepared. There are also many huge jars filled with olive oil, dates, figs and other staple foods.

"As the various towns are usually dug into the conical hills, composed of a succession of strata sometimes rising to a height of 1,000 feet," says Mr. Ashton, "the streets are arranged like terraces or huge steps, culminating in a citadel on the summit, which served as a storehouse and place of refuge in the frequent wars which prevailed until the coming of the pacifying French influence. Looking out from one of these citadels toward the opposite mountains, the view greatly resembles that of the region of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, as the erosion and coloring are much the same.

Cave Town of Matmata.

"Sixty miles south of the cave town of Medenine is the strangest place of all, that of Matmata. While the inhabitants appear to be of similar race, their houses are great wells, which dot the valley as far as the eye can see, surrounded on all sides by low mountains, on top of the loftiest of which can be seen their ancient fortresses and citadels, the valley of Matmata covers more than three square miles. It presents to the eye of the stranger a most astonishing sight, for the whole floor of the valley is dotted with the openings of huge circular wells, about 60 or 70 feet in diameter, open to the sky and about 30 feet deep.

"In all the valley there are only three buildings, and they have only recently been built by the French—a school, a mosque and a market. Yet in this valley are said to dwell more than 12,000 souls without a single tent or house as we know the word.

"Their strange subterranean homes are entered through dark, sloping tunnels, usually branching off into small stables on the way, and opening finally into a circular courtyard, 30 feet below the level, around the vertical sides of which are dug the rooms of the occupants.

"Some of these dwellings are quite spacious, often consisting of a series of wells, entered from the first by connecting passages. These wells are the harems or dwellings of married sons or relatives. Here in Matmata there has sprung up of necessity a distinct code of etiquette, which forbids the approach of any one to the upper edge of one of these walls, for these people are all Moslems and are extremely fanatical, guarding very strictly their women from the gaze of all men."

Admits He Stole Kiss From Girl Nine Years Ago

Goshen, N. Y.—"Did you ever commit a crime?" asked Justice Seeger when Joseph Pelermer applied for naturalization.

"Nine years ago," the man sobbed, "I stole—"

"Tell the truth, my man," the judge cautioned.

"I stole," said the poor man, "I stole a kiss from a girl nine years ago."

Joseph was naturalized.

Ingenious Diving Suit

Improvising a diving apparatus from an old household hot-water tank, fifteen years of rubber tubing, a length of heavy chain and a discarded beer pump, Walter Merwin of Perth Amboy, N. J., has become a successful commercial diver, according to Popular Science Monthly.

Merwin is the submarine member of a firm that salvages metal junk from vessels about to be scrapped. He asserts he can make deep dives with his homemade suit, and that the outfit is perfectly safe.

She Had Heard Comments

At a private entertainment a guest had just risen from the piano.

"Would you like to be able to sing and play as I do, dear?" she asked a five-year-old miss.

"No, ma'am."

"And why not?"

"'Cause," explained the little girl, "I wouldn't like to have people say such horrid things about me."

No Babies Wanted

The small girl met the doctor near her home.

"You brought a little baby next door, didn't you?" she inquired.

"Yes," he answered; "shall I bring one to your house?"

"No, thanks," came the prompt reply. "Why, we've scarcely time even to wash the dog."

Limitations of Sight

Even with good eyesight, it is impossible to recognize a person seen but once before, at a distance greater than 80 feet, says a German oculist.

Exactly

Aunt—Can you explain wireless telegraphy to me, Arthur?

Arthur—Well, if you had a very long dog, reaching from London to Liverpool, and you trod on its tail in London, it would bark in Liverpool. That's telegraph; and wireless is precisely the same only without the dog. —Passing Show, London.

Seeking Information

Young Lady (on first visit to Western ranch)—For what purpose do you use that coil of line on your saddle?

Cowpuncher—That line, you call it, lady, we use for catching cattle and horses.

Young Lady—Oh, indeed. Now, may I ask, what do you use for bait?—London Telegraph.

Beautiful but Dumb

Waitress—Pardon me, but was yours "ham and beans" or "ham and eggs?"

Would-be Diner (who has been waiting thirty minutes)—Why ask me now?

Waitress—Because we're all out of ham.

ODD RACE LIVES IN UNDERGROUND CAVES

Troglodytes of North Africa Antedate the Arabs.

London.—A strange people, living in holes in the ground, descendants of a race so far antedating the Arabs in North Africa that its origin is lost in antiquity were found by Horace D. Ashton, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society and a member of the Explorers' club, during his travels a year ago into the unfrequented localities of Africa a few hundred miles south of the Mediterranean coast. Mr. Ashton calls these people the Troglodytes, a word meaning cave dwellers, of Southern Tunisia. Their headquarters is in a section 300 miles south of the site of ancient Carthage, in the hills known as the Matmata plateau.

"There are practically 30,000 of these cave dwellers," says Mr. Ashton in describing some of their peculiarities in the travel bulletin issued by the French government tourist office at 342 Madison avenue. "No doubt, 2,000 years ago they were living a pastoral life in tents at the foothills, but the armies of the Caesars, after conquering Carthage, swept south and menaced them so that they took refuge in the rocky hilltops, where they dug themselves in between layers of rock.

"Today most of them live just as the invaders left them, as these refuge caves solved a great problem in house construction in a place where there is practically no wood. Utilizing one stratum of hard rock as a floor and the one above as a ceiling, they dig chambers into the comparatively soft marl between, whose dimensions are about 20 feet long, 8 feet wide and with ceilings forming a perfect arch 8 feet high, the whole finished with a crude cement and then whitewashed."

No Furniture in Homes.

Many of the houses, according to Mr. Ashton, contain several chambers, some opening from the main room, but often with independent entrances, except in the case of the harems, or women's quarters. Furniture is virtually absent. The bed is really a platform or shelf in the far end of the room, about three feet above the level of the floor. In only one house did Mr. Ashton see a table, and that was in the home of Sheik Mohammed Lafet of Duirat. He had a plain table, upon which were his papers and some photographs sent by former visitors.

Along the side walls of the occupied rooms are divans, upon which the occupants sit, as there are no chairs. In the women's quarters will be found looms and earthen bowls in which the native dishes are prepared. There are also many huge jars filled with olive oil, dates, figs and other staple foods.

"As the various towns are usually dug into the conical hills, composed of a succession of strata sometimes rising to a height of 1,000 feet," says Mr. Ashton, "the streets are arranged like terraces or huge steps, culminating in a citadel on the summit, which served as a storehouse and place of refuge in the frequent wars which prevailed until the coming of the pacifying French influence. Looking out from one of these citadels toward the opposite mountains, the view greatly resembles that of the region of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, as the erosion and coloring are much the same.

Cave Town of Matmata.

"Sixty miles south of the cave town of Medenine is the strangest place of all, that of Matmata. While the inhabitants appear to be of similar race, their houses are great wells, which dot the valley as far as the eye can see, surrounded on all sides by low mountains, on top of the loftiest of which can be seen their ancient fortresses and citadels, the valley of Matmata covers more than three square miles. It presents to the eye of the stranger a most astonishing sight, for the whole floor of the valley is dotted with the openings of huge circular wells, about 60 or 70 feet in diameter, open to the sky and about 30 feet deep.

"In all the valley there are only three buildings, and they have only recently been built by the French—a school, a mosque and a market. Yet in this valley are said to dwell more than 12,000 souls without a single tent or house as we know the word.

"Their strange subterranean homes are entered through dark, sloping tunnels, usually branching off into small stables on the way, and opening finally into a circular courtyard, 30 feet below the level, around the vertical sides of which are dug the rooms of the occupants.

"Some of these dwellings are quite spacious, often consisting of a series of wells, entered from the first by connecting passages. These wells are the harems or dwellings of married sons or relatives. Here in Matmata there has sprung up of necessity a distinct code of etiquette, which forbids the approach of any one to the upper edge of one of these walls, for these people are all Moslems and are extremely fanatical, guarding very strictly their women from the gaze of all men."

Admits He Stole Kiss From Girl Nine Years Ago

Goshen, N. Y.—"Did you ever commit a crime?" asked Justice Seeger when Joseph Pelermer applied for naturalization.

"Nine years ago," the man sobbed, "I stole—"

"Tell the truth, my man," the judge cautioned.

"I stole," said the poor man, "I stole a kiss from a girl nine years ago."

Joseph was naturalized.

Ingenious Diving Suit

Improvising a diving apparatus from an old household hot-water tank, fifteen years of rubber tubing, a length of heavy chain and a discarded beer pump, Walter Merwin of Perth Amboy, N. J., has become a successful commercial diver, according to Popular Science Monthly.

Merwin is the submarine member of a firm that salvages metal junk from vessels about to be scrapped. He asserts he can make deep dives with his homemade suit, and that the outfit is perfectly safe.

She Had Heard Comments

At a private entertainment a guest had just risen from the piano.

"Would you like to be able to sing and play as I do, dear?" she asked a five-year-old miss.

"No, ma'am."

"And why not?"

"'Cause," explained the little girl, "I wouldn't like to have people say such horrid things about me."

No Babies Wanted

The small girl met the doctor near her home.

"You brought a little baby next door, didn't you?" she inquired.

"Yes," he answered; "shall I bring one to your house?"

"No, thanks," came the prompt reply. "Why, we've scarcely time even to wash the dog."

Limitations of Sight

Even with good eyesight, it is impossible to recognize a person seen but once before at a distance greater than 80 feet, says a German oculist.

Exactly

Aunt—Can you explain wireless telegraphy to me, Arthur?

Arthur—Well, if you had a very long dog, reaching from London to Liverpool, and you trod on its tail in London, it would bark in Liverpool. That's telegraph; and wireless is precisely the same only without the dog. —Passing Show, London.

Seeking Information

Young Lady (on first visit to Western ranch)—For what purpose do you use that coil of line on your saddle?

Cowpuncher—That line, you call it, lady, we use for catching cattle and horses.

Young Lady—Oh, indeed. Now, may I ask, what do you use for bait?—London Telegraph.

Beautiful but Dumb

Waitress—Pardon me, but was yours "ham and beans" or "ham and eggs?"

Would-be Diner (who has been waiting thirty minutes)—Why ask me now?

Waitress—Because we're all out of ham.

AMUSEMENTS

Lon Chaney's Hunchback Role is the Last Word in Stage Art

Lon Chaney, admittedly the finest interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen and whose work as the fake cripple in "The Miracle Man" stands out as a bit of remarkable acting, to say nothing of his other wonderful impersonations, has added another striking characterization to his already long list in his appearance as "Quasimodo," the stellar role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive picture production, based on Hugo's classic, which will be shown at the New Park last time tonight at popular prices.

"The Call of the Canyon" Big Picture

Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw are featured players in the cast of the Zane Grey Paramount

"Montmartre" Starring Pola Negri At Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday

"Montmartre," Pola Negri's latest Paramount production, directed by Ernest Lubitsch, the man who made the star famous in "Passion," is a colorful romance of France about 1860.

In the picture, which comes to the Lyceum Theatre Wednesday for a run of two days, Pola has the role of Yvette, an alluring dancer in the Cafe Flora in Montmartre. She has a chance meeting with a young composer, and he falls in love with her. But there is an older cousin who steps in and spoils everything by telling the musician's mother that Yvette is no kind of a woman for her son to be seen with—a cafe grisette and all that. Nevertheless they get married in secret.

ENTERTAIN FOR CONG. KNUTSON

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McKay And Mr and Mrs. E. J. Quinn Hosts

GATHERING AT McKAY HOME

Dr. J. A. Thabes Toastmaster. Many Responses Made

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McKay and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Quinn, of this city, were hosts entertaining last night with Hon. Harold Knutson, congressman of this district, as the honor guest. The rooms of the home of the McKay's, where the dinner and reception took place, were beautifully decorated with cut flowers.

HAROLD KNUTSON

Republican Candidate for Congress—Sixth District.

The dinner table was arranged in right angle shape, three rooms of the home being utilized by opening connecting doors, thus enabling 40 guests, ladies and gentlemen to be comfortably seated, to partake of the splendid home cooking and delicacies and to hear the glowing tributes paid the congressman by his friends and to hear his grateful response.

After the dinner was discussed Dr. J. A. Thabes, as toastmaster, made the introductory remarks and referred to the years of service of the congressman and the many things he had done for the district. He expressed the opinion that he would certainly be re-elected.

Miss Louise Barrett spoke of her life work as teacher, starting out 2,000 children on the road to useful citizenship.

John A. Hoffbauer told of the loyalty of the newspaper boys in this district who stood by Congressman Knutson. The congressman was in his younger days editor of a Foley paper and later for years city editor of the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press and has always remained a loyal friend of its publisher, Alvah Eastman. The newspaper boys of the district honored Mr. Knutson by electing him president of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association.

Mr. Knutson evinced his interest in the improvements carried on in dairying in the Brainerd sector and was aware of what the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce had done on "Better Sires Day." When the appeal came from this district to raise the tariff on butter and other dairy products to shut off Danish and other competition, which was gaining an unfair advantage because of fluctuations in exchange, he promptly introduced a bill in congress to remedy the situation.

W. C. Cobb told of Congressman Knutson's appointments made in this district, sending five local boys to Annapolis and West Point, these being John Downey, Henry Lagerquist Arden White, Mr. Giles and George Gilbertson.

Albert Buscher and Donald McKay were directed to the competitive examination and appointed cadets of the coast guard Academy.

The congressman, continued Mr Cobb, had at all times shown an interest in his constituents and had answered all communications, and endeavored to be of constant service.

Attorney B. T. Heath of Pequot told of the active work of the congressman and noted the affection and regard shown for the congressman.

Mrs. D. D. Schrader spoke briefly.

Attorney T. C. Bailey of Bemidji, expressed the sentiments of the people in this northernmost county of the sixth congressional district. They appreciated what he had done in his years of work as a legislator and believed in his continuance in office.

Major J. F. Elkins spoke of Spanish-American war conditions, the pension system, and recited various instances of the courtesy and prompt attention the congressman paid communications and of his efforts to assist in matters entrusted to him.

At the conclusion, Dr. Thabes called on Mr. Knutson and he voiced his appreciation of all the tributes paid him and that he would continue, as in the past, if re-elected to give his whole-hearted efforts to improve the welfare and advance the material well being of the whole district.

Among the guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Heath of Pequot; John A. Oberg of Deerwood; E. B. Dahl of Pine River; T. C. Bailey and others of Bemidji.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN ON

Earl O'Brien Team Leading Wyett's Squad by $175

SOLICITORS AT LUNCHEON

Time Extended to Allow More Thorough Canvass of the City

Earl O'Brien's team is leading R. F. Wyett's squad by about $175 in the contest for funds with which to continue the Boy Scout activities in Brainerd.

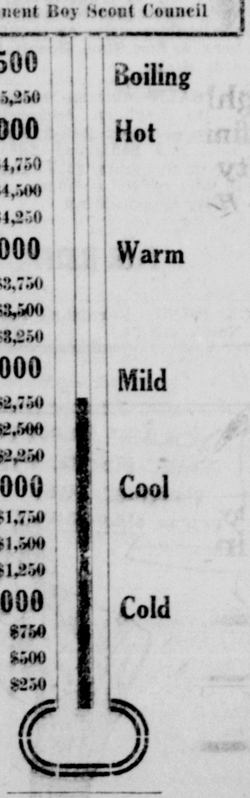

The solicitors met at luncheon on Monday evening at the Ransford hotel, for a check-up on the accomplishments of the day, with the above result.

It was brought out at the luncheon that in order to cover the city as thoroughly as was outlined, it would be necessary to take more than two days to the task. Accordingly, the time has been extended to allow the solicitors to make a careful canvass of the entire city.

Elmer Franson, chairman of the drive, states that many who did not subscribe at all last year, are doing so gladly this year, having seen the progress that Scouting has made in Brainerd, and feeling that the movement should be perpetuated.

It was first decided to hold another luncheon at the Ransford this evening, but this has been cancelled. Mr. Franson will call a meeting of the solicitors in the near future to go over the results and plan for the balance of the campaign.

The newspaper boys of the district honored Mr. Knutson by electing him president of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association.

Mr. Knutson evinced his interest in the improvements carried on in dairying in the Brainerd sector and was aware of what the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce had done on "Better Sires Day." When the appeal came from this district to raise the tariff on butter and other dairy products to shut off Danish and other competition, which was gaining an unfair advantage because of fluctuations in exchange, he promptly introduced a bill in congress to remedy the situation.

W. C. Cobb told of Congressman Knutson's appointments made in this district, sending five local boys to Annapolis and West Point, these being John Downey, Henry Lagerquist Arden White, Mr. Giles and George Gilbertson.

Albert Buscher and Donald McKay were directed to the competitive examination and appointed cadets of the coast guard Academy.

The congressman, continued Mr. Cobb, had at all times shown an interest in his constituents and had answered all communications, and endeavored to be of constant service.

Attorney B. T. Heath of Pequot told of the active work of the congressman and noted the affection and regard shown for the congressman.

Mrs. D. D. Schrader spoke briefly.

Attorney T. C. Bailey of Bemidji, expressed the sentiments of the people in this northernmost county of the sixth congressional district. They appreciated what he had done in his years of work as a legislator and believed in his continuance in office.

Major J. F. Elkins spoke of Spanish-American war conditions, the pension system, and recited various instances of the courtesy and prompt attention the congressman paid communications and of his efforts to assist in matters entrusted to him.

At the conclusion, Dr. Thabes called on Mr. Knutson and he voiced his appreciation of all the tributes paid him and that he would continue, as in the past, if re-elected to give his whole-hearted efforts to improve the welfare and advance the material well being of the whole district.

Among the guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Heath of Pequot; John A. Oberg of Deerwood; E. B. Dahl of Pine River; T. C. Bailey and others of Bemidji.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN ON

Earl O'Brien Team Leading Wyett's Squad by $175

SOLICITORS AT LUNCHEON

Time Extended to Allow More Thorough Canvass of the City

Earl O'Brien's team is leading R. F. Wyett's squad by about $175 in the contest for funds with which to continue the Boy Scout activities in Brainerd.

The solicitors met at luncheon on Monday evening at the Ransford hotel, for a check-up on the accomplishments of the day, with the above result.

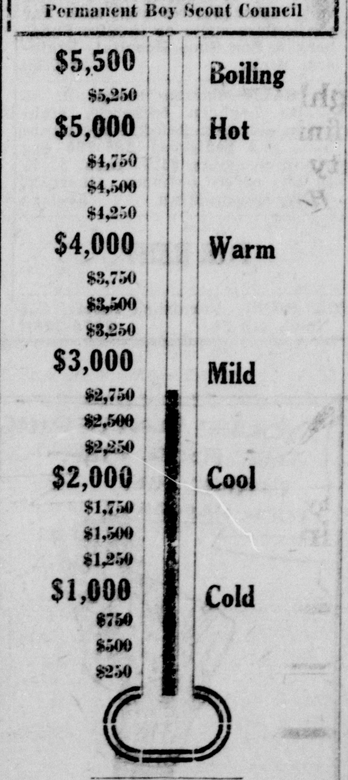

It was brought out at the luncheon that in order to cover the city as thoroughly as was outlined, it would be necessary to take more than two days to the task. Accordingly, the time has been extended to allow the solicitors to make a careful canvass of the entire city.

Elmer Franson, chairman of the drive, states that many who did not subscribe at all last year, are doing so gladly this year, having seen the progress that Scouting has made in Brainerd, and feeling that the movement should be perpetuated.

It was first decided to hold another luncheon at the Ransford this evening, but this has been cancelled. Mr. Franson will call a meeting of the solicitors in the near future to go over the results and plan for the balance of the campaign.

HUNTING A RACER TO BEAT FRENCH CRACK

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 10.—This country lacks an outstanding equine champion to match against Epinard, when the great French thoroughbred crosses the Atlantic for a series of three races this fall.

A season that held so much of promise in St. James, Sarazen, Wise Counsellor, Mad Play and Ordinance has failed to produce a horse worthy of carrying the silks of America against Pierre Wertheimer's flyer.

True, Black Gold may yet establish himself as the year's wonder horse. The victory of this popular western colt at Churchill Downs makes him, at present, first choice for the second of the match races, which will be at a mile and a quarter, the Derby route.

But Black Gold, despite the enthusiasm of western horse men, is looked upon as the lucky best of a spring that brought little but misfortune to crack colts, whose aristocratic hoofs had promised to drum out new turf history.

There awaits a "kingdom for a horse" which can step out of the undistinguished mass of dark ones and show heels to fields in the 1924 classics. Eastern men say there has not been a chance like this in ten years for some good horse to "clean up" in the stake races.

Where are the stars of the winter books?

St. James, for whom prognosticators wove the laurels of Churchill Downs, is temporarily, perhaps permanently, out of the running. The colt broke down after a breeze at Jamaica shortly before Derby Day.

Wise Counsellor, conceded by many westerners as a winner of the Preakness and the Derby, went off his feed—or something.

Sarazen has not responded to careful treatment by Maxey Hirsch in a way that painstaking veteran would like.

Mad Play failed; so did Bracadale. Ordinance hesitated at the threshold of a championship career.

Zev, best of 1923, lost caste when he took dust from St. James and later from Rialto and Sunsini at Jamaica.

There is Laurano, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap, and Bud Fisher's good filly, Nellie Morse, but neither of these measures up to the French champion.

* * * * * * * * *

Pierre Wertheimer's horse, while far from being the greatest of all time, is a far better colt than Papyrus, the beer-swigging English Derby winner, which trailed Zez in the $100,000 stake race at Belmont Park last year.

Epinard ran some fine races on the Continent and in England last year, and was easily the best three-year-old in Europe. In the Cambridgeshire it was asked to concede too much weight and met defeat by a head. Last month, in a match race at the historic St. Cloud track, Epinard was beaten again by a head by J. D. Cohn's Sir Galahad III. Many who watched this match race believe that had the riders been reversed, Epinard would have won.

At the time, Wertheimer stated that he would go through with plans to ship his colt to the United States, provided it made a good showing in some English races this summer.

* * * * * * * * *

This year's international stake races will be three in number, at a mile, mile and a quarter, and mile and a half. Two will be on eastern tracks and one at Latonia. Epinard will be shipped in August, to race late that month and twice in September.

The French colt is not as temperamental as Papyrus was made out to be. When the English champion crossed on the Aquitania, it had a special stall supported to offset the rolling of the ship; it was spoon-fed, had its pint of beer each day and was handled with gloves from Ben Irish's stables to the paddock at Belmont. And then they neglected to put on the right kind of shoes, and Papyrus was as helpless in the mud that day as though it had worn roller skates.

Epinard has speed, heart and unusual class and the American horse that takes ihs measure should show more outstanding ability than has been displayed on the turf yet this year.

Tomorrow, Sam Hildreth, trainer of Zev, Grey Lag and other champions, will tell what horse he thinks will show the class to warrant its choice as American champion, and other veteran trainers have given the United Press their opinions as to the probable contender.

NORTHWEST BASEBALL

Owatonna, Minn., June 10. — The three leading teams of the Southern Minnesota Baseball association retained their positions as a result of Sunday's games.

Owatonna and Faribault each won. Austin did not play. Owatonna defeated Waseca, 14 to 1. Faribault triumphed over Mankato in a close battle, 3 to 2, in 11 frames and Austin and St. James did not play account of the wet field.

Owatonna gathered 19 hits off the Waseca hurlers and scored in every inning except the fifth.

New Richland, Minn.—The local team Sunday defeated Blooming Prairie by the score of 1 to 1. Each club made seven hits, but the locals bunched theirs.

Winona, Minn.—Mason City again defeated the Winona team, winning Sunday by 7 to 1. Lefty Grant of the Iowa team held Winona to six scattered hits. Moss hurled well for Winona, but his mates fell down in the fielding, allowing eight errors.

Winona, Minn.—All games scheduled for Sunday in the Central Minnesota league were called off account of rain.

Albert Lea, Minn.—Two Albert Lea men were out and the bases full when the 6 o'clock baseball law ended a 15-inning battle between Harold Johnson of Albert Lea and Swede Risberg of Rochester, Iowa-Minnesota League teams.

The game ended 4 to 4.

Four times the game was tied. In the last inning Risberg filled the bases on balls. Burke of the Tigers tied the score on a squeeze bunt.

BREEZY POINT STATE SHOOT OPENED TODAY

SUNSHINY WEATHER CONTRIBUTES TO GOOD SHOOTING

DINNER AND DANCE AT LODGE, FOLLOWED BY FIREWORKS

Bright, sunshiny weather, with a light wind, roads drying up nicely, gives every assurance that all natural agencies are working to make of the Minnesota State Trapshooting tournament at Breezy Point Lodge, June 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 one of the most successful in the history of the association.

Shooters assembled for the first events will run well over a hundred, it is expected, with more arriving hourly on trains and automobiles. All the galaxy of notables who shot in the Brainerd preparatory shoot Monday are now facing the Breezy Point traps.

The entire Brainerd Gun club made its way to Breezy Point this morning. Fort Snelling and Twin City gun clubs are coming in large delegations. The cash prizes of the tournament run up to $2,500. Silver loving cups awarded as trophies number 15. There is also the Diamond Badge to be shot for.

Tonight from 6:30 to 8, there will be a dinner and dance at Breezy Point, followed by fireworks at 9 o'clock. Many Brainerd people have made reservations. Others expected are from Pine River, Duluth, Little Falls, St. Cloud, Crosby. Pequot will be represented by a large membership from its commercial club and it is expected that many members of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and their wives will be present.

Roller Skater Lays Plans to Tour U. S. on Concrete Pavement

Minneapolis, June 10.—Alba Hall, Minneapolis teamster who essayed to roller-skate last week to the end of the pavement at Belle Prairie and only reached Elk River, plans to tour the pavements of the country on skates next.

He announced his plan today in his room at the Globe hotel in the Mill City. "I was surprised," he said, "at the condition of the pavements. What I learned may enable me to develop a new kind of skates, and a new form of outing exercise that will be practicable all over the United States.

"But next time, believe me, I'll take extra rollers. I wore out two rubber-tired rollers on the way to Elk River."

FAMOUS WORTHINGTON SHOT WINS HIGHEST HONORS

W. G. WARREN OF PORTLAND, OREGON, SECOND WITH 197

Sixty shooters lined up at the Brainerd Gun club traps on Holland Hill Monday and excellent scores were made at this one day registered shoot, being a sort of preparatory exercise for the big State Trapshooting Tournament which is held at Breezy Point Lodge June 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

John of Leyden

In 1534 Johann Bockelson, popularly called John of Leyden, established the kingdom of Zion in the city of Muenster, Westphalia, Germany, and had himself crowned king. His fanaticism finally brought him imprisonment and death.

HUNTING A RACER TO BEAT FRENCH CRACK

By Frank Getty
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 10.—This country lacks an outstanding equine champion to match against Epinard, when the great French thoroughbred crosses the Atlantic for a series of three races this fall.

A season that held so much of promise in St. James, Sarazen, Wise Counsellor, Mad Play and Ordinance has failed to produce a horse worthy of carrying the silks of America agafnst Pierre Wertheimer's flyer.

True, Black Gold may yet establish himself as the year's wonder horse. The victory of this popular western colt at Churchill Downs makes him, at present, first choice for the second of the match races, which will be at a mile and a quarter, the Derby route.

But Black Gold, despite the enthusiasm of western horse men, is looked upon as the lucky best of a spring that brought little but misfortune to crack colts, whose aristocratic hoofs had promised to drum out new turf history.

There awaits a "kingdom for a horse" which can step out of the undistinguished mass of dark ones and show heels to fields in the 1924 classics. Eastern men say there has not been a chance like this in ten years for some good horse to "clean up" in the stake races.

Where are the stars of the winter books?

St. James, for whom prognosticators wove the laurels of Churchill Downs, is temporarily, perhaps permanently, out of the running. The colt broke down after a breeze at Jamaica shortly before Derby Day.

Wise Counsellor, conceded by many westerners as a winner of the Preakness and the Derby, went off his feed—or something.

Sarazen has not responded to careful treatment by Maxey Hirsch in a way that painstaking veteran would like.

Mad Play failed; so did Bracadale. Ordinance hesitated at the threshold of a championship career.

Zev, best of 1923, lost caste when he took dust from St. James and later from Rialto and Sunsini at Jamaica.

There is Laurano, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap, and Bud Fisher's good filly, Nellie Morse, but neither of these measures up to the French champion.

* * * * * * * * *

Pierre Wertheimer's horse, while far from being the greatest of all time, is a far better colt than Papyrus, the beer-swigging English Derby winner, which trailed Zez in the $100,000 stake race at Belmont Park last year.

Epinard ran some fine races on the Continent and in England last year, and was easily the best three-year-old in Europe. In the Cambridgeshire it was asked to concede too much weight and met defeat by a head. Last month, in a match race at the historic St. Cloud track, Epinard was beaten again by a head by J. D. Cohn's Sir Galahad III. Many who watched this match race believe that had the riders been reversed, Epinard would have won.

At the time, Wertheimer stated that he would go through with plans to ship his colt to the United States, provided it made a good showing in some English races this summer.

* * * * * * * * *

This year's international stake races will be three in number, at a mile, mile and a quarter, and mile and a half. Two will be on eastern tracks and one at Latonia. Epinard will be shipped in August, to race late that month and twice in September.

The French colt is not as temperamental as Papyrus was made out to be. When the English champion crossed on the Aquitania, it had a special stall supported to offset the rolling of the ship; it was spoon-fed, had its pint of beer each day and was handled with gloves from Ben Irish's stables to the paddock at Belmont. And then they neglected to put on the right kind of shoes, and Papyrus was as helpless in the mud that day as though it had worn roller skates.

Epinard has speed, heart and unusual class and the American horse that takes ihs measure should show more outstanding ability than has been displayed on the turf yet this year.

Tomorrow, Sam Hildreth, trainer of Zev, Grey Lag and other champions, will tell what horse he thinks will show the class to warrant its choice as American champion, and other veteran trainers have given the United Press their opinions as to the probable contender.

NORTHWEST BASEBALL

Owatonna, Minn., June 10. — The three leading teams of the Southern Minnesota Baseball association retained their positions as a result of Sunday's games.

Owatonna and Faribault each won. Austin did not play. Owatonna defeated Waseca, 14 to 1. Faribault triumphed over Mankato in a close battle, 3 to 2, in 11 frames and Austin and St. James did not play account of the wet field.

Owatonna gathered 19 hits off the Waseca hurlers and scored in every inning except the fifth.

New Richland, Minn.—The local team Sunday defeated Blooming Prairie by the score of 1 to 1. Each club made seven hits, but the locals bunched theirs.

Winona, Minn.—Mason City again defeated the Winona team, winning Sunday by 7 to 1. Lefty Grant of the Iowa team held Winona to six scattered hits. Moss, hurled well for Winona, but his mates fell down in the fielding, allowing eight errors.

Winona, Minn.—All games scheduled for Sunday in the Central Minnesota league were called off account of rain.

Albert Lea, Minn.—Two Albert Lea men were out and the bases full when the 6 o'clock baseball law ended a 15-inning battle between Harold Johnson of Albert Lea and Swede Risberg of Rochester, Iowa-Minnesota League teams.

The game ended 4 to 4.

Four times the game was tied. In the last inning Risberg filled the bases on balls. Burke of the Tigers tied the score on a squeeze bunt.

BREEZY POINT STATE SHOOT OPENED TODAY

SUNSHINY WEATHER CONTRIBUTES TO GOOD SHOOTING

DINNER AND DANCE AT LODGE, FOLLOWED BY FIREWORKS

Bright, sunshiny weather, with a light wind, roads drying up nicely, gives every assurance that all natural agencies are working to make of the Minnesota State Trapshooting tournament at Breezy Point Lodge, June 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 one of the most successful in the history of the association.

Shooters assembled for the first events will run well over a hundred, it is expected, with more arriving hourly on trains and automobiles. All the galaxy of notables who shot in the Brainerd preparatory shoot Monday are now facing the Breezy Point traps.

The entire Brainerd Gun club made its way to Breezy Point this morning. Fort Snelling and Twin City gun clubs are coming in large delegations. The cash prizes of the tournament run up to $2,500. Silver loving cups awarded as trophies number 15. There is also the Diamond Badge to be shot for.

Tonight from 6:30 to 8, there will be a dinner and dance at Breezy Point, followed by fireworks at 9 o'clock. Many Brainerd people have made reservations. Others expected are from Pine River, Duluth, Little Falls, St. Cloud, Crosby. Pequot will be represented by a large membership from its commercial club and it is expected that many members of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and their wives will be present.

Roller Skater Lays Plans to Tour U. S. on Concrete Pavement

Minneapolis, June 10.—Alba Hall, Minneapolis teamster who essayed to roller-skate last week to the end of the pavement at Belle Prairie and only reached Elk River, plans to tour the pavements of the country on skates next.

He announced his plan today in his room at the Globe hotel in the Mill City. "I was surprised," he said, "at the condition of the pavements. What I learned may enable me to develop a new kind of skates, and a new form of outing exercise that will be practicable all over the United States.

"But next time, believe me, I'll take extra rollers. I wore out two rubber-tired rollers on the way to Elk River."
